

Shan Shah's How I work

About ME

My name is Shan Shah. I am a senior in Michigan State University completing studies in Information and Media. After taking diverse courses in multiple colleges within MSU I found my passion working with Web development and IT environment.

I have taken courses in TISM department that have provided me with basic knowledge of html, css, and JavaScript. I have also worked in IT environment at MSU over the last two years. Currently I am working for Veterinary Teaching Hospital's IT group handling users request and helping them on their day to day job using computers. I plan on using the knowledge gained from my work experience and the course work involving programming in my future career post graduation in 2014.
